

NASAP Affiliate Membership

Alfred Adler and Rudolf Dreikurs promoted Individual Psychology by lecturing throughout North America in order to establish “pockets” around the continent where Individual Psychology would flourish. NASAP has taken this same grassroots approach through the formation of Affiliates, organizations (e.g., local interest groups, schools or institutes) that are governed by their own principles of operation independent of NASAP while being associated with NASAP. The Affiliate receives the same membership services as individual members such as the journal and newsletters.

In order to become an Affiliate, the group needs to: have at least two General Members among its membership (A General Member of NASAP is an Individual, Retired, Family or Student Member); submit a copy of their constitution, by-laws or statement of purpose which is consistent with the NASAP Constitution; and pay an application fee which is the same as the annual dues and is applied to their first year’s dues.

When an Affiliate has 5 General Members of NASAP the Affiliate may send one of these General Members as a voting representative to serve on the COR. At the Council of Representatives Meeting, he or she will have the opportunity to network with and share in the support of other Affiliates as well as share in the governance of NASAP.

Groups having questions about Affiliate membership or who are interested in learning more about the Affiliate application process are encouraged to contact the NASAP office. If you are ready to apply, please send an email to NASAP including the following information:
